Major Whittle's Son Struck by the Cars and Killed.

Major D. W. Whittle and family have Major D. W. Whittle and family have the sincere sympathy of the community in their recent bereavement. His only son, who resided at Wharton, Ill., was instantly killed on Thursday, May 10, being struck by a railway train while riding a bicycle. He leaves a wife and two young children, she being a former student at Northfield seminary. As soon as the tidings reached here Miss May Whittle and Wm. Moody started for Chicago, meeting Major Whittle, who was in Pennsylvania, on the way. Funeral services were held at his late home on Monday.

The Shock from the Accident at Brattleboro.

When the news reached Northfield of the terrible calamity that had befallen the seminary teachers at Brattleboro, the seminary and community were shocked and grief-stricken. On Tuesday afternoon an impressive memorial service was held at Stone hall in memory of Miss Mariana Blood. The hall was beautifully decorated with flowers by the girls from Weston hall, where Miss Blood was teacher in charge. The hall was filled with the students from the two schools and citizens, and the grief manifested indicated the esteem in which she was held. Mr. D. L. Moody paid a most touching tribute to her memory, after which Miss Silverhorne, a teacher, gave a sketch of her Miss Formanifested and contains the content of the Miss Silverhorne, a teacher, gave a sketch of her Miss Silverhorne, a teacher, which Miss Silverthorne, a teacher, gave a sketch of her life, of her work as a teacher and a Christian, and told in a broken voice of the close ties that bound the departed one to the girls and teachers of the school. Rev. S. P. Cook, Rev. Mr. Torrey and Rev. Mr. Needham followed with short remarks, after which, by request of her father, Mr. Blood, the young ladies sang "Safe in the arms of Jesus." The body was taken to her home in Auburndale, where the funeral was held on Thursday.

A Golden Wedding.

Following closely upon the ringing of the wedding bells at the North church on the wedding bells at the North church on Wednesday evening were heard the golden wedding bells of Mr. and Mrs. Medad Moody. A company of about 200 called unexpectedly to greet and congratulate the worthy couple. After an hour of social good cheer, L. R. Smith, the master of ceremonies, called the people to order, and after making a short speech introduced Mrs. Wm. Alexander, who read an original poem. Following this Miss Burnett of Boston, in her happiest manner, recited so Boston, in her happiest manner, recited selections, both grave and gay. Captain C. C. Duncan of this place and Mrs. C. H. Newton of Vernon made short speeches, after which Rev. G. F. Piper, in behalf of the citizens, presented Mr. and Mrs. Moody with a slight token of their esteem in the shape of $50 and more in gold. Dr. N. P. Wood responded in behalf of the recipi-ents. Other gifts of value were given by relatives and friends. Delightful music was furnished at intervals during the even-ing by the Unity club chorus, drum corps and Northfield band. Lee cream and cake was dispensed by the ladies of the town. The evening was in every respect a delightful one, and Mr. and Mrs. Moody must have been impressed with the friendship and esteem with which they are held by their townspeople. It is quite remarkable that Mrs. Mixter and Mr. Thomas Alexander, who served as bridemaid and groomsman at the wedding 50 years ago, were present on this occasion.

Fitt-Moody.

The Congregational church of this village was the scene of a most brilliant wedding on the evening of Wednesday, May ding on the evening of weinesday, May 16, when Emma Reynolds, only daughter of D. L. Moody, was united in marriage to Percy Fitt of Chicago. The church was tastefully decorated with purple and white illacs and laurel leaves. The altar was banked with white blossoms making a beautiful setting for the scene. Promptly at 6 o'clock the bridal party entered the church, preceded by the young ladies composing Miss Moody's Sunday school class. As the strains of Lohengrin's wedding march filled the church, the ushers entered, followed by the bride leaning upon her father's The 100th anniversary of the organiza-the Misses Carrall of Dresden, Germany, and the bridemaid, Miss Bessie Sharp of London, England, a cousin of the bride. They were met at the chancel by the groom Grand Commander M. O. Perkins of and his best man, Paul Moody, a brother children and other grand officers are exchurch of England was solemnized by Rev. S. P. Cook, the pastor of the church, assisted by Rev. Mr. Hartzler, the Bible teacher at Mount Hermon, Mr. Moody giving his daughteraway. At the close of the ceremony the bridal party passed down the aisles out of the church, followed by the immediate family and friends. The ushers were Messrs. Delevan Pierson of North-field, Howard Williams of New York, Alexander McGaffin of Princeton, Samuel Walker of Northfield, A. C. Fulton of Mount Hermon and Allen Sankey of Brook-

> Owing to the sad death of Major D. W. Whittle's son the week previous, he being a close friend of the family, and the tragic death of Miss Mariana Blood on Monday, the reception was omitted at the house, for which most elaborate preparations had been made. A few personal friends gathered at her home at the close of the ceremony to her home at the close of the ceremony to wish her God-speed. Mr. and Mrs. Fitt left Northfield on the evening train, their bridal route being unknown. Later they will reach their home on La Salle avenue, Chicago, it being the gift of Mr. Moody to his daughter.

Mr. Fitt is a native of Dublin, Ireland, and a graduate from Dublin university. He first met his wife while Mr. Moody was loing evangelical work in England. Later he came to this country and was engaged as Mr. Moody's private secretary, which office he held until he took a position with the Bible institute in Chicago, where he will continue.

The bride was simply but elegantly dressed in white slik, cut en train, with a tulle vell, and carried a bouquet of bride roses. The maids of honor were tastefully dressed in white, carrying beautiful bou-quets, while the bridemaid was attired in

Among the guests were Dr. A. T. Pierson and son, Ira D. Sankey, Rev. and Mrs. Geo. C. Needham, Rev. and Mrs. Torrey of Chicago; Miss Dougerty of Brooklyn; J. J. Estey of Brattleboro; Mr. Carrall and family from Dresden, Germany and the faculty of the two schools.

The body of J. Wesley Caldwell was brought from New York on Wednesday to West Northfield for burial. Mr. Caldwell was born in this town and was brother of Mr. King Caldwell, who still resides here. He leaves a wife and children.
